Mekudeshet loves music. For us, it is one of the most beautiful and powerful forms of artistic expression. Music has always been integral to our creative and inspirational goals and has been responsible for miracles, connections and meetings. It is a language that transcends words and space. Over the past decade, we have invited you to join us at the end of creative processes, the culmination of fascinating journeys that developed in rehearsal rooms and behind the scenes. You stood, or sat, facing the stage, and the finished, polished project unfolded before your eyes.

But the events of the last two years caused us to rethink the musical experience, what it is trying to convey, and how it should look and feel. We want to replace the distance that the stage creates between audience and performer with an intimate space where brilliant musicians encounter audiences unmediated. Instead of staging a perfect, complete performance, we want to open the door to works in progress crafted by masters from multiple genres. In addition to practicing and fine-tuning, we will leave space for improvisation and innovation that begins with listening and ends with brilliance.

The Feel Beit ensemble is taking the place of veteran bands and lineups, led by Itamar Doari, wizards and masters who have already started rehearsing in an attempt to play this place and time.

Tzomet Lev's music program invites you to the luscious, expansive Gabriel Sherover promenade to immerse yourself in sound, to hear a journey, to play this place and time, to be the music.

Itamar Doari, Music Director, Tzomet Lev

What role should music play in our current reality? This is the question that accompanied me on this musical voyage. I tried to turn the experience and feelings of the past year into words, and the words into sounds and melodies.

Very quickly, I discovered that before the music starts, I needed to stop and listen, recalibrate and think again, find new, inviting pathways for listening and creativity and connect to other artists who are searching and on the same path. We picked up a group of musicians and artists on our way, who were looking to craft and mold this togetherness and its unending potential.

The light that lit our way also showed us that we need “something” more — a greater openness. A musical experience that is connected and driven from this time and place. We have taken away the stage, opened the door to evolving creative processes, offered you an opportunity to take part, created more inclusive, richer spaces, allowed music to lead the way, and listened. What you will hear here is a musical expression of the here and now.

This moment is a melody that will never be repeated. Itamar Doari, Music Director, Tzomet Lev

FEEL BEIT ENSEMBLE

Please meet the Feel Beit ensemble, a group of musicians and instrumentalists who joined forces especially for Music in Tzomet Lev, and are already meeting and rehearsing in our new home. Over the next few weeks, the ensemble will host guest soloists and fill the Gabriel Sherover Promenade with the music of our times.

Guests

Wednesdays

June 23 | June 30 | July 7

5:00-7:30 pm »

◆ Me-Shira -

a female choir led by Yael Deckelbaum. We invite you to sound your voice and to join the surrounding circles.

◆ Playing with HaMadrassa:

gifted musicians from Jerusalem Academy of Music, led by Hagai Bilitzky, play a soundtrack that is perfectly attuned to the sunset and issues an invitation to learn and play together.

And:

◆ A flute workshop for all the family and all ages with Elitzur Goldsmith invites you to learn the ancient skill of making pan flutes out of thick-barreled plants and offers a lesson in how to play them.

◆ Healing sounds with Liel Abadi. A meditative musical journey with sounds from all over the world—gongs, crystal bowls, Tibetan bowls, curative singing, shamanic drums, hang drums (handpans), ocean drums, bells, flutes and more.

7:30-8:30 pm »

◆ Everybody together:

Singing circles meet the Feel Beit ensemble on the main lawn for an hour of magical, immersive music. Guests: Tamar Shawki, Rechela, Ravid Kahalani, and Abatte Barihun.

8:30-11:00 pm »

◆ Feel Beit after party with DJ Wa Jima

Selector Set: A journey deep into the sounds of the Middle East, a unique set crafted out of a record collection, recordings and a collection of rare DJ Wa Jima segments. Weaved into this will be a generous helping of disco funk, disco with a Middle Eastern and African groove on our magical terrace.
